There are several pieces of information that are important to convey, here are the different types of requirements for your website.

Business Requirements: The look and feel of the website is designed to be easy for older customers to read and understand how to use, as well as to give a new, clean, simplistic feel.

Content Requirements: We will be using your images that were provided by you for the gallery and any other banner images. Content will include the services offered and more information on the company.

Functional Requirements: The users will be able to contact you straight from the website and give a message.
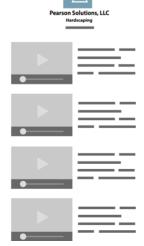

Technical Requirements: The website will be built on a framework that will accept a high number of users on the website at once.

The wireframe for your website is below.
